The San Diego Anglers

Are Proud to Present - Guest Speaker

Co-owner and Operator of the "Pacific Queen"

Captain Drew Card

Captain Drew Card is the co-owner and operator of the "Pacific Queen", an 88 foot clean-lined Sportfisher with a massive 22 foot beam. The "Pacific Queen" has unique lines that make her the ultimate sport fishing platform. With a cruising speed of 11 to 12 knots this makes the "Pacific Queen" one of the faster boats in the fleet. Drew has two separate fish holds on the "Pacific Queen" that are set at the perfect chill temperature to ensure the highest quality fish when you return to the dock and have the fish processed at Five Star Fish Processing, San Diego's premier fish processor.

Drew's love for the water and his passion for sport fishing started at a young age. Since he was a little grom, he would pound the shore surf fishing and surfing all summer long. In his 20's, he became JJ Garrison's (owner of the "Apollo"), right hand man. He knew the next step was to buy his own boat and create a business and legacy for his own family.

CCA Desperately Needs Our Help!

AB 3030 is aggressive legislation that threatens recreational access to 30 percent of the state's coastal waters, as well as 30 percent of land and inland waters. For the saltwater community, this is MLPA 2.0.

Aside from pushing for MPAs, AB 3030 has several other problems including:

1. It does not recognize any of the existing protections and management already in place. California is already a global leader in marine conservation and managed at both state and federal levels.
2. California already has a wide network of 146 MPA's, reflecting the most restrictive marine environmental management policies in the world.
3. Fishing closures will reduce state revenues from fishing licenses and boating fees, and in turn reduce much needed funds for scientific study and fisheries enforcement.
4. This bill lacks clarity. It uses the term "protection" but does not specify what exactly that means. In addition, the bill states that the current protections are inadequate but fails to specify why.
5. AB 3030 would severely restrict recreational activities at a time when more, not less, open space is necessary for the enjoyment of all Californians.
6. The recreational fishing community has proposed amendments to correct the ills of AB3030 but those amendments have largely been rejected.

San Diego Anglers Charter Report

by Dwayne Patenaude, Charter Master & Debbie Patenaude

July 23, 2020

We have had a couple of charters in the last month, one on the “San Diego” and one on the “Vendetta”.

Arriving at Seaforth Landing by 4:30am, there was already a line waiting to sign the manifest for the full-day trip aboard the “San Diego.” Things were certainly different this year: with everyone was wearing their mask and a passport in hand, or they would not have been allowed to board the vessel. When we boarded, we found that the boat was thoroughly cleaned (which was carried out during the day as well) and had hand sanitizing stations around the boat for our use. The galley chef was cooking behind a partition of plastic, like what you see at the grocery store. This all being said, it didn't slow our fishing down a bit!

The “San Diego” charter started out by fishing reds outside South Island. Captain Matt said that if the yellows were going to show, it would be in the afternoon when the current started to run. We ended up getting near limits of reds then moved into South Kelp ridge, then threw some bait, and the calicos started biting full speed on almost everything you put in the water. We had a great time catching and releasing calicos and bagging the bigger ones for future fish tacos. We pulled the anchor at the end of the day and moved to North Coronado island to try for the yellows. We cruised the weather side of North Island, chumming along the way, looking for the yellows. A few showed up at Pukey Point but not in any real numbers. We did not get any yellows in the boat, but we had a great time anyway with great weather and fishing! Thank you to the captain and crew of the “San Diego” and to our Charter, Master Dwayne Patenaude, for putting this together. (See photos from this charter on the next page.)

On the “Vendetta”, excitement was high as we left the dock because the tuna had moved into tuna alley, outside North Coronado island: 30-35 pound yellowfin and bluefin had been caught here the day before. We jetted out to the area and started immediately to see foamers, and cruised up to school after school chucking bait and lures, mostly to no avail. A few of us got lucky and caught them on poppers and iron, but while exciting to watch, they were not cooperating very well by biting the bait. We finally bailed on the tuna and went into the islands to try for the bass that had been biting so well for the last month. The water temps had dropped about 7 degrees, and the bass got lock jaw, and we struggled with even catching bass. The weather, camaraderie and fishing was great, but the catching was just so-so.

I was one of the lucky ones to get a few on the popper. I discovered this popper while fishing one of our charters on the “San Diego” a couple of years ago. All the crew rods had these poppers tied on, and when it was time to go fishing, those poppers were the bomb. I went home and ordered a handful, and they have been very good to me when the fish are up boiling real good on the surface. It is a 150mm, Clear, FEED popper out of Japan. They cost about $22 each and are flown in from Japan. But good luck finding one as they are out of stock quite frequently. The 175mm CLEAR popper also works when the fish are really on a tear. That one you have to put your own hooks on as some people like single hooks on the big poppers. Just search "FEED Poppers" on Google and start searching if you are interested.

Next up is the “Mission Belle”, Aug 2, “Vendetta” Aug 17, and “San Diego”, Aug 31 . Stay tuned for the upcoming emails for these charters on these premier boats in the heart of a great season!

San Diego Anglers Foundation Receives 501(c)(3)

By: Jill Broadfoot

We are very excited to announce that the San Diego Anglers Foundation has finally received its 501(c)(3) designation! We have been waiting for this for many years, and we are now recognized as a nonprofit charitable organization by the IRS. Now we are able to apply for grants, receive endowments and obtain other donations that require proof of a 501(c)(3) designation. Also, donations received while our application was pending may be treated as tax-deductible contributions retroactive to the date of our organization's formation.

We appreciate everyone's support over the last few years, and we look forward to growing the foundation's activities in the coming years.
