San Diego Anglers Annual Bass Slam Tournament

By Andrew Hauser

On October 17th, the San Diego Anglers held their bass slam tournament, this is the semi pro club tournament of the year. With the competition tighter than ever, three anglers battled their way all day in treacherous conditions, brutally dense fog that brought visibility down just inches. When the fog settled and the bell rang a true champion was crowned. Andrew Hauser squeaked out the win by a mere inch and quarter. The real battle was with second place. Linda Power was able to pull off second place by just a quarter of an inch. Adam Larson fought hard all day and casted until his arms felt like rubber bands and was able to secure a spot on the podium. As the drama unfolded in the adult division, the youth had their own. Vincent Hauser started out strong in the early morning but hit a flat spot midday and allowed for Luke Larson the confidence needed to over take the lead. Luke then followed up with another huge fish to dominate his class. Luke Larson is definitely a contender to watch out for in the near future as the sky is the limit for this kid.
